Leaders in Resolving High-Stakes Divorces

The legal team of Meyer, Olson, Lowy & Meyers (MOLM) has built a national reputation for tenacious representation in family law litigation, particularly complex and contentious divorces. This female-owned firm is especially adept at handling cases that involve high-asset marital estates, child custody matters, domestic violence and move-away cases. The firm's goal-driven, skilled and experienced attorneys bring a combination of legal sophistication and empathy to their clients, who include entertainers, executives, professionals and pro athletes. MOLM's lawyers seek to initially settle cases outside the courtroom, but they also have a track record of impressive trial work. This includes handling a groundbreaking California case establishing that vested stock options should be included in the supporting parent's gross income and a case involving an international move-away request for a parent with a minor child.
